Pacific’s Theatre Arts Department presents Arthur Miller’s A View from the Bridge

A View from the Bridge opens Friday Oct. 18 at 8 p.m. in DeMarcus Brown Studio Theatre and continues Oct. 19, 23, 24, 25 and 26 at 8 p.m., and Oct. 20 and 27 at 5 p.m. Tickets are available at the door or in advance by calling (209) 946-2UOP and are $10 general admission and $6 for students, staff and seniors.

Set near the docks of Brooklyn in the early 1950s, A View from the Bridge is an emotionally charged play about a longshoreman and his family. Within minutes of entering their world, you understand that behind the masks of normalcy lies a secret that will tear them apart. Having raised his niece, Catherine (Heather Dooley), in the best way he knew how, Eddie (Dustin Herboldshimer) is devastated when she falls in love with an illegal Italian immigrant, Rodolpho (Zach Koval). What transpires as a result of Eddie’s misguided affection will surprise and move you in the way that only playwright Arthur Miller can.

The Pacific production of Arthur Miller’s A View from the Bridge is directed by Gary Armagnac with sets and lighting by Rex Reynolds and costumes by Cathie McClellan. The rest of the cast includes Casey Kooiman, Alfieri; Leah Wellsch, Beatric; Matt Candito, Marco; Micael Helman, Louis and Tony; Stacie Moniz, Michelle; Jenny Treadwell, Mrs. Lipari; Jessica Sutar-Blair, Mrs. DellaRocca; and Ryan Arab and Jennifer Plassmeyer as the immigration officers.

impact on public education throughout the United States,” said John Nagle, dean of Pacific’s Benerd School of Education. “This major revision of the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act significantly affects curriculum, state testing programs, teacher preparation, district and state report cards, and—ultimately—matters of school choice for parents.”

Under the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001, states and school districts must develop strong systems of accountability based on student performance. The new law also gives states and school districts increased local control and flexibility, removing federal red tape and bureaucracy and putting decision-making into the hands of those at the local and state levels.

In her position, Neuman serves as the principal adviser to the U.S. Secretary of Education on all matters related to elementary and secondary education. She oversees the Office of Elementary and Secondary Education which provides more than $14 billion annually to help expand educational opportunities and excellence in the nation's K-12 education system.

Before joining the Education Department, Neuman was a professor in Educational Studies at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor and director of the Center for the Improvement of Early Reading Achievement. For 10 years prior to joining the Michigan faculty, Neuman was a professor at Temple University in Philadelphia. She has also taught at Boston College, the University of Massachusetts, Lowell and Yale University. Early in her career Neuman was an elementary school teacher and reading specialist.

Neuman graduated from American University and received a master’s degree from CSU Hayward. She earned her doctorate in reading education from Pacific.

International faculty development seminars

The Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE) launched the International Faculty Development Seminars (IFDS) series in 1990 to stimulate college and university initiatives toward internationalizing curricula.

The Seminars are hosted by prestigious academic institutions abroad and provide short-term (1-to 2-week) intensive overseas experiences, offering focused updates on global issues and regions that are shaping the course of world events, while introducing participants to scholarly communities overseas.

Through exploring international issues and exchanging views with colleagues in other countries, seminar participants are able to re-examine their own disciplines within an international context and to incorporate global perspectives into their teaching and research. CIEE’s International Faculty Development Seminars have spanned the globe with more than 125 programs in 31 countries.

IFDS for summer 2003 will be held in Australia, Brazil, China, Costa Rica, Croatia, Cuba, Lebanon, New Zealand, South Korea, Hungary and the Czech Republic, India, the Netherlands, Northern Ireland, Senegal, South Africa, Spain, Taiwan, Turkey, and Vietnam.

Eligibility

Seminar participants should be faculty and/or administrators at two- or four-year institutions of higher education. In order to facilitate an interdisciplinary exploration of seminar themes, applicants from all academic concentrations are encouraged to apply.

Participants do not need to be experts on the seminar topic or region. Approximately 85% of participants are faculty and 15% are administrators. Spouses and family members are not eligible to participate.

CIEE’s IFDS features the following Academic Program:

- Lectures/Discussions
- Site Visits and Study Tours
- Academic Interchange
- Pre-Departure Information (Orientation)
- Length of Seminars
- Seminars range in length from 7 to 13 days.

Questions

If you have questions regarding CIEE’s faculty seminars, contact us by phone at 212-822-2782, call toll-free at 1-800-40-STUDY (ext. 2782), by e-mail ifds@ciee.org, or visit CIEE’s web site at www.ciee.org/seminars.
Protect your home on Halloween

When mischievous ghosts, monsters, vampires or humans armed with toilet paper and eggs attack your home on Halloween, who do you call?

Pacific's Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) chapter is selling Boo Insurance to protect homes in the Stockton area from the Halloween tradition of TPing and egging houses.

For only $5 per policy, you can count on the students of PRSSA to come and clean up your house if it gets attacked on Halloween.

PRSSA is a pre-professional organization for students studying public relations. During the year, the chapter will have professional guest speakers, workshops to improve resumes and interview skills and members will attend other development events.

The Pacific chapter was chosen to host this year's PRSSA National Conference in San Francisco, which will be attended by 1,000 students from across the country.

If you would like to buy a Boo Insurance policy, call PRSSA at 946-3045.
