U.S. Solicitor General Theodore B. Olson to speak at Convocation; will receive honorary degree

United States Solicitor General Theodore (Ted) Olson, who has the primary responsibility for deciding which cases to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court and presenting the Government’s case, will be the keynote speaker at University of Pacific’s convocation ceremony Friday, May 14, 5:30 p.m.

Olson, who graduated cum laude from Pacific in 1962 with a BA degree in Communication and History, will also receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the University.

The Solicitor General distinguished himself while still an undergraduate at the University of the Pacific. His debate scholarships, national debate championship and college Journalism and Speech Award foreshadowed his future successes as an attorney handling numerous Supreme Court cases.

According to University of the Pacific President Donald DeRosa, Olson exemplifies the citizen leader that is the mark of a Pacific graduate.

“His achievement in his professional life is punctuated by years of public service at the highest levels of our Federal government,” says DeRosa. “His active engagements in the political arena demonstrate his belief that advocacy for the commonweal animates all of his work. Mr. Olson’s leadership as an undergraduate student at Pacific already demonstrated this commitment, and it continues as he serves as the nation’s top lawyer before the Supreme Court.”

After graduating from Pacific, Olson graduated from the University of California’s Boalt Hall School of Law, and began a career as a trial and appellate lawyer with the firm of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher (LLP), becoming a partner in 1972. In 1981 he was appointed legal counsel by President Reagan as Assistant Attorney General. Olson was nominated by President George W. Bush to be the 42nd Solicitor General of the United States and took the oath of office on June 11, 2001.
We did it!

Congratulations to the Departments of Curriculum and Instruction, Educational Administration and Leadership, Educational and School Psychology, the Educational Resource Center, and Speech-Language Pathology for meeting the accreditation standards for the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing (CCTC). They are also expected to meet all accreditation standards for the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) when the NCATE Board of Examiners releases their report this coming October.

Assistance from all departments made this success possible. A huge THANK YOU goes out to those who helped the accreditation process along.

No Identity Crisis Here

With year-end activities and commencement upon us, be certain to give your next college or school event the crisp new Pacific look! Marketing and University Relations now has banners and podium signage bearing Pacific’s new word mark and seal available on loan. The items include two identical 4’ x 8’ banners on free-standing frames displaying the word mark and seal, one 8’ x 8’ banner displaying a repeat pattern of our word mark for exclusive use at press conferences, and removable 24” x 30” podium signage and cast seals. Also available are indoor/outdoor banner with word mark and seal; grommets on top and bottom for attachment, black background, 2.5 ft by 8ft. and a table banner with word mark and seal - designed to fit a 6’ banquet table, but good for 8’ as well; black background.

Whether your event is a concert, lecture, press conference or reception, the fresh new Pacific signage is an important addition. Contact Sheri Grimes at 6-2311 in the Marketing Department for more information or to reserve signage for a University function.

HARRIETT ARNOLD, associate professor, School of Education, presented at the Association of Supervision and Curriculum Development (ASCD) Annual Conference in New Orleans, LA, March 2004. The executive officers of the Pacific/ASCD student chapter, ASHLEY CHRISTIANSEN, JENNIFER ORTEGA and KARI MARTINEZ, participated in student meetings, sessions, and major presentations, and were active in sessions with practitioners in the field of education.

CAROLINE COX, assistant professor in the History Department, has been selected to participate in the Summer Seminar at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, New York.

MERRILL SCHLEIER, professor of Art History, delivered a paper, “The Empire State Building: Collaborative Architecture, Working Class Masculinity, and King Kong,” at the Society of Architectural Historians’ annual convention in Providence, RI. She was invited to submit the paper to an anthology entitled, “The Architect As Hero,” currently under consideration by MIT Press.

DR. ROBERT HALLIWELL, School of Pharmacy, gave an invited lecture at the Sierra Sacramento Medical Society on April 21, 2004.

PAUL FOGLE, Dept. of Speech-Language Pathology, presented all-day seminars on Counseling Skills for Rehabilitation Professionals in St. Louis, MO, Orlando, FL, and Kansas City, MO. He presented seminars on Evaluation and Treatment of Auditory Processing Disorders (APD) and Attention Deficit Disorders (ADD) in St. Louis and Kansas City. Dr. Fogle has also been invited to be the keynote speaker at a conference on APD and ADD in Singapore this May, and was invited to present his Counseling Skills and APD & ADD seminars to the membership of the Speech and Hearing Association of Singapore in August.

The Multiple Subject Credential program, in the Department of Curriculum and Instruction, Benerd School of Education, and the Lodi Unified School District, received the “Quality of Education Award for Distinguished Service to Children and the Preparation of Teachers” from the California Council on Teacher Education, April 2 in San Jose. The collaborative received funding from the California Department of Education as a Comprehensive Teacher Education Institute partnership.

DAVID HALL, Director of Campus Recreation, was selected as the Recreation and Sport Services “Alum of the Year 2004” for the University of West Florida.
Interim Dean of Education
Announced

Dr. Dale Andersen has been named as the interim dean of the Benerd School of Education. A retired professor of higher education at the University of Nevada,

Dr. Andersen, will serve as the interim dean through June 30, 2005.

Highly regarded as an educator, Dr. Andersen has served as President of the AACTE in 1997-98, the Executive Committee of NCATE from 1996 to 1998 and was the Dean of the School of Education at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

Provost Phillip Gilbertson said, “We are fortunate that Dr. Andersen is available and interested in working with the School of Education in the coming year to chart its future and prepare it for a new dean.”

Andersen replaces Dean Jack Nagle, who is stepping down to spend more time in the classroom. Nagle will continue as a professor at the School of Education.

Tau Beta Pi Fellowships Twice!

The Pacific School of Engineering and Computer Science (SOECS) is pleased to announce that Jim Martin is the recipient of a Tau Beta Pi Graduate Fellowship for 2005. Tau Beta Pi is the only engineering society representing the entire engineering profession. It is the nation’s second-oldest professional society, founded at Lehigh University in 1885 to recognize students of distinguished scholarship and exemplary character.

Out of the 450,000 members of Tau Beta Pi, approximately 30 fellowships are awarded annually to support the first year of graduate study. The fellowships are granted on a competitive basis and are given to members who exhibit high scholarship, extracurricular contributions, and extraordinary promise for future achievement in the engineering profession. This is the second consecutive year that an engineering student at the University of the Pacific has received the award – a rare accomplishment for any university and a representation of the quality education and professional guidance provided by the School of Engineering and Computer Science.

Jim is an engineering management major graduating summa cum laude this May and is the recipient of the Outstanding Graduate award for the SOECS. Over the course of his studies at Pacific, Jim was vice-president of Tau Beta Pi, president of the American Society for Engineering Management, and president of the Pacific Association of Engineering Students. Jim performed his co-operative education assignments at General Mills and conducted award-winning, undergraduate research with the company. His research, based on intellectual asset management, is published in two peer-reviewed professional journals. In 2005, Jim will use his fellowship award to pursue an MBA degree through the accelerated graduate program at Pacific.

Honorary Degree Recipients

This year, the University will grant honorary degrees to three very deserving recipients with special ties to the University and Stockton. Each has made a significant contribution to the world through their particular talents and successes. This year’s recipients are U.S. Solicitor General Theodore Olson, COP ’62; Pacific alumna and world-renowned actress and author Janet Leigh Brandt, and critically-acclaimed author and Stockton native Maxine Hong Kingston.

Theodore Bevry Olson

Theodore Bevry Olson, U.S. Solicitor General, has dedicated his life to service to his country and its people, not by fighting in military wars but by fighting on the legal and political battlegrounds. His political career began at a young age. As a student at the College of the Pacific, Olson was active in the Young Republicans, and also served as editor of the Pacific Weekly, Senior Class Vice President, and Outstanding Graduating Senior in Journalism and Speech. He graduated from Pacific in 1962 with a Bachelor of Arts degree, cum laude, in Communication and History. After graduating from the University of California, Boalt Hall School of Law, in 1965, he joined the law firm of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher (LLP) and became a partner in 1972. His practice areas included Constitutional Law, Appellate Litigation, Commercial Law, Administrative Law, First Amendment Litigation, Federal Civil Litigation, State Civil Litigation, and Media and Commercial Disputes.

In 1981, Olson was appointed by President Reagan as Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel, U.S. Department of Justice. In 1984, he returned to Gibson & Dunn in its Washington, D.C. office, where he was Co-Chair of the Appellate and Constitutional Law Practice Group. He handled numerous Supreme Court cases involving the Constitutionality of Punitive Damages; the Separation of Powers; the First, Tenth, and Eleventh Amendment issues; Civil Rights; Affirmative Action; Anti-Trust; and the Equal Protection and Due Process Clauses. He successfully argued the Florida election case for George W. Bush before the Supreme Court in 2000. In 2001, he was nominated by President Bush to be the 42nd Solicitor General of the United States. He took the Oath of Office on June 11, 2001.

Janet Leigh Brandt

While a student at College of the Pacific, Jeanette Morrison attracted the attention of motion picture star Norma Shearer, who saw her picture at a ski-lodge her parents managed. Shearer took the photo to her home studio, Metro Goldwyn Mayer, and suggested that they give Morrison a screen test. Morrison apparently passed with flying colors, as her first role placed her opposite a popular leading man of the 50’s, Van Johnson. At his suggestion, she changed her name to Janet Leigh, then went on to make 85 motion picture and television movies opposite such stars as Frank Sinatra, Judy Garland, Elizabeth Taylor, Paul Newman, John Wayne, James Stewart, and others. Leigh was nominated for an Academy Award as Best Supporting Actress for her role in the Alfred Hitchcock classic, “Psycho,” and received the Golden Globe Award for the same film.

Leigh is also an author of four books, two works of fiction and two dealing with her film career. “There Really was a Hollywood” takes her from her student days at Pacific to her life in films, while “The Making of Psycho” speaks of her experience in Hollywood.

Leigh has not only achieved great professional success in the tradition of University of the Pacific, but she has also used her name and her talent to help numerous charitable causes. Her compassion for the less fortunate started while a music and psychology major at the University. She volunteered at the old Stockton State Hospital, conducting music therapy classes for mental patients. In addition to her contributions while attending Pacific, Leigh has also continued to give back to the Stockton community, returning to Stockton eight times since she left Pacific to appear at local charitable events. Her appearances have helped raise hundreds of thousands of dollars for Stockton Police Youth Activities, the Community Blind Center, Sunflower Presents, the Stockton Arts Commission and many other charities.

Leigh’s charity work is not limited to Stockton. Once in Hollywood, she helped found S.H.A.R.E., a group of movie and entertainment industry women who put on extravagant musical productions each year, raising several millions of dollars for Los Angeles area charities. She is a past president and Board Chairman of the philanthropic group.

Leigh has also been named to represent the American Film Institute, which is working for the preservation of American films, and travels throughout the country on its behalf.

Maxine Hong Kingston

Maxine Hong Kingston was born on October 27, 1940, in Stockton as the first of six American-born children. Kingston grew up surrounded by other immigrants from her father’s village, and both the storytelling she heard as a child and her first language, Say Yup, influenced her later writing. By the age of nine, Kingston was proficient in English, capable of writing poems in English.

A brilliant student, Kingston attended Edison High School in Stockton, winning eleven scholarships which allowed her to attend the University of California at Berkeley. She began as an Engineering major, but soon switched to English Literature, receiving her B.A. in English in 1962 and her teaching certificate in 1965. In 1962, she married actor Earll Kingston, a Berkeley classmate, and together they taught in Hawaii for the next ten years, during which time she gave birth to her son, Joseph Lawrence Chung Mei.

In 1976 Kingston published her first book, The Woman Warrior: Memoirs of a Girlhood Among Ghosts, while teaching creative writing in Hawaii. The novel received immediate critical acclaim for its fresh subject matter and fierce, poetic style that reflects Kingston’s Chinese-American heritage. The Woman Warrior is now the most popular novel read by freshman composition classes in the U.S., and was the recipient of the National Book Critic’s Circle Award in 1976. In addition to this work, Kingston has also published China Man (1980) and Tripmaster Monkey (1988) both of which have garnered strong yet controversial reviews.
Coming soon: Wet paw prints

Does your little cub have cold feet about getting wet feet? You’re in luck! This year’s Tiger Cubs Summer Camps will include optional daily swimming lessons for an additional cost of $38. Campers will enjoy an hour of swimming instruction in small groups of 4-6, the perfect size necessary to maximize individual attention. Your cub will be swimming like a champion in no time!

All aspiring Tigers aged 5-12 are invited to attend Pacific’s Tiger Cubs Summer Camps 2004 for a time of fun and games in a non-competitive environment. Activities range from basketball, soccer, volleyball, and tennis to arts and crafts and a wide assortment of indoor and outdoor games. Each camper is given her or his own Pacific T-shirt to sport.

Sessions run June 7-11, 14-18, and 21-25. Half-day campers attend from either 8 a.m. to noon or from noon to 4:30 p.m. All-day campers attend from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuition is $85/week for half-day campers and $115/week for all-day campers, not including the discount for Tiger Cub Club members, families sending more than one all-day camper, all-day campers who attend more than one session, and Pacific faculty and staff.

Applications are available by contacting Veronica Torrez by email at vtorrez@pacific.edu, by phone at 946-2249, or by mail to Pacific Tiger Cubs Summer Camp, Athletic Dept. of the University of the Pacific, 3601 Pacific Ave., Stockton, CA 95211.

Music Camp

The Conservatory is pleased to announce the 2004 Pacific Music Camps, an opportunity for secondary school students to dive deeper into the world of music. Camps offered include the Brubeck Institute Jazz Camp, Junior Band & Orchestra, and Senior Band, Orchestra, Chorus & Piano.

Now in its 58th year, Pacific Music Camps are designed to stretch promising student musicians with an intense one-week musical experience combined with lively social activities. Participants have the opportunity to sharpen their musical skills with 60 faculty and staff, including top regional music educators, professional musicians and Conservatory of Music faculty. Each camp concludes with a dynamic concert for family and friends in the 1,000 seat Faye Spanos Concert Hall. Last summer, more than 500 student musicians from the western United States attended Pacific’s Music Camps.

The Brubeck Institute Jazz Camp for grades 8-12 will take place June 20-26. Students will be immersed in jazz instruction, ranging from jazz ensemble, theory, improvisation and combos to master classes and jazz history. Cost for one week is $350 for commuters, including lunches and dinners, and $450 for resident campers, including room and meals.

Junior Band & Orchestra, held July 11-17 for grades 6-8, and Senior Band, Orchestra, Chorus & Piano, held July 18-24 for grades 9-12, aim to strengthen and stretch current musicians of all kinds. Daily activities include concert band, orchestra, jazz ensemble, chorus and jazz choir, as well as master classes, electives, and chamber ensembles. Cost for one week is $325 for commuters, including lunches and dinners, and $425 for resident campers, including room and meals.

Interested? Contact the Conservatory at 209-946-2415 or visit their website, http://www.uop.edu/Conservatory/psummer.html, for more information.
