

Please join the Center for Teaching and Learning in welcoming
our newest Faculty Developer:
Dr. Mark A. Ulett

Mark has a Ph.D. in Biology from Arizona State University, an M.A. in History and Philosophy of Science from University of Leeds, and a B.Sc. in Marine Biology and History of Science and Technology from Dalhousie University and the University of King's College. Prior to coming to Pacific, he taught for four years at Duke University in the Thompson Writing Program, at Duke Kunshan University in China, and Arizona State University in the School of Life Sciences.

Mark will work under the CTL Director to assist faculty as they integrate pedagogical innovations, including the best digital tools and teaching methods in a rapidly changing environment of technology and learners. He began administrative and faculty development work as Associate Director of First-Year Writing at Duke, and while serving on various curriculum review boards. Mark's publications and research interest span evolutionary theory, history of science, digital pedagogy, and trends in higher education.
